

Popular Biomedical Training Instructor Launches New Business

Quality training is essential for the Biomedical profession but it is often times hard to find. BC Group is proud to endorse and recommend this new and innovative option for our industry.

Dale Munson, a popular training instructor in the biomedical community, has launched his own business; Biomed Support Services. Biomed Support Services strives to build technical competence in biomedical technicians and clinical engineers. Biomed Support Services include creating simple-as-possible training materials, presenting customized courses, recommending process improvements and performing a variety of technical support functions (calibrations, output verifications, PMs, etc.).
